A New and Better Church Piano—

Pacific School of Religion Berkeley, Calif.

Easily moved from room to room for Sunday School, Choir Practice, Entertainments and Social Gatherings

The Miessner lends itself to many uses in the church. Light, only 375 lbs., it is easily moved from place to place by two children. Two men can carry it up and down stairs or out onto the lawn.

Thus a single Miessner takes the place of a number of large pianos.

The Miessner is the small piano that surprised the musical world with its wonderfully big, full tone. It won the name of the "Little piano with the big tone."

It is the creation of W. Otto Miessner, nationally prominent music educator. Miessner built this piano especially for the school room. Its superior tone and other qualities brought it into wide demand for churches where the requirements are much the same as those of the school room. It is so low, only 3 feet 7 inches high, that the pianist looks over the top to lead the singing, insuring a perfect ensemble. Requires only a fraction of the space taken by the old type upright.

Yet nothing has been sacrificed in the tone of the Miessner. It is an entirely new instrument, built along new and advanced lines. It is not merely a large piano cut down in size New principles in low tension stringing are embodied in the Miessner. Quality and workmanship are the finest. Thousands of Miessners in use today are giving complete satisfaction.

We will be glad to send you complete information about the Miessner for church use and tell you in detail how you can effect a big economy by using this sturdy, superior instrument. Address,

The Westminster Standard Teacher Training Course

THOROUGHLY FURNISHED

A three year diploma course

This course deals with the fundamentals necessary for successful Sunday school teaching.

TEACHING THE TEACHER

A first course

Recommended for schools that are not advanced enough for the work of the Standard Course. It is especially recommended for Teacher Training Departments where it is felt that a survey course of the Bible is needed as part of the training course.

PREPARATION FOR TEACHING

A first certificate course

Simple in style and comprehensive in treatment. It meets the needs of the individual reader or student as well as the needs of a teacher training class.

A Lesson Course for the Sunday School

THE WESTMINSTER DEPARTMENTAL GRADED LESSONS

Seven Departments—Seven Lessons

In the final analysis it is what the pupils get from the lessons that really counts. And what they get depends upon the suitability and adaptability of the lessons.

The need of the child should be the law of any school. But a school need not burden itself with an impractical lesson system in giving the best to its pupils.

Religious Education for the Week Day

First and foremost a summary of the entire Week Day Religious Instruction Movement can be learned from

THE WEEK DAY CHURCH SCHOOL

By Walter Albion Squires, B. D.

It assumes that the week day church school movement is more than an experiment, and the movement is evaluated in its entirety as well as in its various community forms. Careful and conservative estimates are given. Problems of organization are discussed practically, not theoretically.

A PARISH PROGRAM OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

By Walter Albion Squires, B. D.

Suggestions for a church school designed to carry on a unified educational program for an individual church. Composed of a program of leadership training; a program of co-operation with the home; and a central program of information worship and expression.

Issued for the use of Church Schools, having Sunday, Week Day and Expressional Sessions.

THE WESTMINSTER TEXTBOOKS OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

Produced for the purpose of enabling churches to unify their educational work by the use of a correlated course of study. Unless there is some such binding of week-day religious instruction to the regular educational program of the individual church, we shall lose a large part of the benefit to be derived from the week day church school movement.

These courses of study are not tied up to any weekly time schedule, so that churches may begin the use of them at any time. The lessons are carefully graded so as to fit the religious needs of pupils of the ages for which they are intended.

DAILY VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL

Some people think that the Daily Vacation Bible School enterprise is suited only to congested sections of the cities; or in spiritually and socially neglected localities They have proved great worth under such circumstances; but they have also given excellent results where the conditions have been quite the reverse.

Important reasons for establishing a Daily Vacation Bible School will be found in our Bulletin No. 12.

The COKESBURY HYMNAL

"A SONGBOOK FOR EVERY OCCASION"

Hymns For The Church | Songs For The Sunday School | Songs For The Revival

The Cokesbury Hymnal is a songbook for every occasion and for every possible use. For the regular Church service where a HYMNAL cannot be afforded, for the Sunday School in churches of all sizes, and for the revival services as well!

The Cokesbury Hymnal brings back the old hymns and tunes that our fathers and mothers used to sing. Songs that thrill the heart and inspire the soul with the intense love of divine worship. They are the hymns and songs that the people love to sing, because they come from the deepest recesses of the heart and because the heart and mind and soul respond to them in a glorious rhythm of worshipful praise.

Preachers, song leaders, and Christian workers from everywhere made the selections comprising the Cokesbury Hymnal. The publishers asked them to select only those hymns that are nearest to the hearts of the great mass of Christian people. On nearly every list submitted the old familiar songs were predominant! They represent the most treasured numbers from the very best books of the foremost song publishers of the world.

Special Chorus Arrangements

Professor Harold Hart Todd, Professor of Harmony and Piano in Southern Methodist University, has contributed special chorus arrangements for eleven of the most popular choral numbers. A feature that cannot be found anywhere in a songbook of this price.

Three Indexes

The Cokesbury Hymnal is equipped with three complete indexes so that any one song or list of songs for a special purpose may be easily found. There are over fifty different subject headings, with from one to forty-three different songs listed under each. Only its actual use in your own Church can demonstrate in a better way that it is a songbook for all occasions.

Responsive Readings

Not satisfied with publishing a remarkable songbook, the publishers have included a selected group of responsive readings. The readings are taken from both the Old and New Testaments, many chosen for use on special occasions, while all are appropriate for regular use in the weekly Church service.

Orchestrated Edition

Of supreme importance to the members of the choir and orchestra is the orchestrated edition. The publishers of the Cokesbury Hymnal have had every song in the book set to music for fourteen different instruments—bound in separate volumes, one for each instrument. These books will be available January 1, 1924. Information as to prices, etc., will be furnished on request.

What Texts Shall We Use?

THIS is the question that will have to be answered when plans are made for the opening of Week-day Schools of Religious Education. Let us tell you a little about THE ABINGDON SERIES OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION TEXTS.

The writers of The Abingdon Texts have all been selected because of their loyalty to six primary considerations:

1. The fundamentals of Evangelical Christianity.
2. Scientific accuracy.
3. Intelligent sympathy with the denominational point of view and that spirit of inter-church cooperation which is making possible a national and even a world program.
4. The true function of religion in a program of community upbuilding.
5. The assembling and organizing of that knowledge which will be most helpful from the standpoint of practical efficiency, and around which inspiring enthusiasm on the part of both teacher and pupil can readily be fostered.
6. The meaning of religious education to American democracy.

For the New Day In Religious Education

At the beginning of a new day in the religious education of the child, this house is striving to fulfill the obligation of providing literature based on the best educational ideals.

GRADED LESSONS

Believing that the need of the child is paramount, as recognized in Graded lessons, we have spared no pains nor expense in the production of this material. Our line of Graded literature has been approved by those qualified to judge.

UNIFORM LESSONS

Some schools, for various good reasons, prefer the Uniform lessons. We believe the children in those schools are entitled to the best we can give, and we therefore maintain the high quality of our Uniform material.

GROUP-UNIFORM LESSONS

These have been prepared by the Primary and Junior groups, as authorized by the International Lesson Committee. They are used in connection with regular Uniform lessons for other groups. They will make better Uniform schools.

It is our earnest desire to render a notable service. We have prepared many booklets for free distribution, and shall be glad to help those who will write us of their problems and their needs.

The STORY of the BIBLE

By Hendrik Willem Van Loon

Before its publication, The Story of the Bible was hailed from editorial column and pulpit as unquestionably the great book of the year. It was necessary to print a first edition of 50,000 and so great was the demand that another edition of 25,000 has had to be ordered at this writing. This wonderful book has created more interest and enthusiasm than any other book of the kind in the past two decades. It falls not within the category of "Modern English" versions, but rather is of a type with the classic by John Foster—also "The Story of the Bible"—which has served generations of Sunday School pupils.

While every part of the Bible is written about with great and thrilling beauty the part devoted to the life of Jesus will undoubtedly stand out as one of the greatest and most reverent biographies of Christ ever written. This noble, enduring masterpiece—truly called the Spiritual Story of Mankind—is beautifully made, in royal blue cloth, with full colored inlay on the cover, uniform with the Story of Mankind. Sixteen full page plates, the greater part in full color, the rest in beautiful etching tone, and over 150 black and over 150 black and white illustrations, all done by the author with characteristic fervor and imagination, adorn the text. Price Net, $5.00

Beyond Rope and Fence

An Unusually Fine Book for Boys and Girls

This remarkable story of a horse has already been adopted for the Young People's Reading Circles of Alabama, Idaho, and Michigan, and has the whole-hearted endorsement of many educators throughout the country. Colin H. Livingston, President of the Boy Scouts of America, said: "Boy Scouts especially should read 'Beyond Rope and Fence' —which is equivalent to saying that all boys and girls should." Beyond Rope and Fence plays on the emotions and brings out the kindlier feelings of the reader for dumb beast and man. It should be in every Sunday school library. It offers new and interesting reading of ethical value without preachment.

This remarkable story of a group of wild horses led by Queen Dora, the buckskin mare of the Canadian prairies, has won universal praise from both the press and the public.

AUDITORIUM ADMINISTRATION CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

ELON COLLEGE BUILDINGS

Now In Course of Construction

A Laboratory of Christian Education

ELON COLLEGE—Elon College, North Carolina, is erecting a building unique among American colleges, a laboratory of Christian Education. It is expected that the building will be ready for occupancy by the beginning of the academic year 1924-'25.

This building is made possible by a generous layman of the Christian Church residing in California, Mr. M. Orban, Jr. Mr. Orban is a member of the Board of Christian Education of his denomination and is anxious to see the correlation plans his Board is projecting provided with an experiment station in one of the denomination's colleges. He chose Elon as this experiment station and has given the money to erect and equip the building.

The Christian Education building at Elon is to be the social and religious center of the college. The building is to have three stories and a basement. The first floor is given over to the Y. M. and Y. W. C. A.'s and the eight social clubs, four for young men and four for young ladies. This it is esteemed is a happy correlation, placing the social and voluntary religious life of the campus in juxtaposition and it is confidently expected the result will be satisfyingly wholesome.

On the second floor is the assembly room for Christian Endeavor and other student groups, including the daily chapel service. The same room is the general assembly room of the Week-Day School of Religion, the Citizen's Sunday School, and the Junior Community Church. On this floor also are four recitation rooms for the Department of Christian Education. These rooms are used as class rooms for the Young People's Division beyond the Senior age and of the Adult Division of the Citizen's Sunday School. The floor also contains the office of the Director of Christian Education and of the College Pastor.

The third floor is assigned to the Week-Day Religious School and the Citizen's Sunday School up to and including the Senior age. There is a large, attractive Beginner's Department with a Mother's Room with toilet facilities adjoining. The Primary Department with separate assembly room on which the individual class rooms abut then follows. Likewise there is an assembly room each for the Junior, Intermediate, and Senior Departments, with individual class rooms abutting. For the Juniors and Intermediates there are six separate class rooms; for the Seniors, four. Each class room is equipped for sixteen pupils. There are also adequate toilet facilities, cloak rooms, an office, library, and supply room, and an elevator, besides the stairway. The building is to be equipped with the very best and most approved furniture. The Community Boy Scouts and Camp Fire Girls have permanent quarters in the large, airy basement rooms, entirely separate from each other.

The college students of the Department of Religious Education are assigned to the Week-Day School of Religion for their laboratory work. They also conduct the Junior Church and assist during the college term in the Citizen's Sunday School. The local graded school is now used on Thursday afternoons for the Week-Day School of Religion, but when the new building is completed the pupils will, it is expected, come to it during public school time. Other laboratory work in Christian Education is provided by the Kindergarten School of Religion at the Christian Orphanage nearby, by the Week-Day Religious School for the children of the negro public school, by the Night School of Religion for the adult negroes of the community, and by a Country Mission Sunday School and Church services on Sunday.

Elon feels that denominational colleges owe it to their young people to provide laboratory facilities in Christian Education as much so as in Chemistry or Physics. This building will be her answer. Dr. Walter S. Athearn has been in constant consultation in planning the building. He declares it is the first building of its kind in America and predicts that it will not by any means be the last.

FOREWORD

WITH the increasing interest in Religious Education, there has come a demand for reliable information regarding organizations and individuals engaged in this important field of service. It is fitting that the International Sunday School Council of Religious Education should issue the first Year Book giving such data.

The idea was conceived by the Business Superintendent of the International Council, Mr. Ray S. Erlandson, and later approved by the Board of Trustees. Mr. Erlandson has been ably assisted in carrying out the project by his secretary, Miss Agnes E. Bollinger. In this little volume will be found a large amount of valuable facts never before compiled. Doubtless, imperfections may be discovered, but an earnest effort has been put forth to furnish reliable, up-to-date information in the field of Religious Education.

INTRODUCTION

THE International Sunday School Council of Religious Education is a comparatively new organization, having been formed in 1922 by the consolidation or merging of two organizations,—the International Sunday School Association and the Sunday School Council of Evangelical Denominations.

The International Sunday School Association, with its auxiliary state, provincial, county and district organizations, had for more than fifty years represented the organized Sunday School work of the continent. For many years Sunday School work was developed and promoted under its influence. One of its greatest accomplishments was the awakening of the different Protestant Christian denominations to the importance of Religious Education, particularly as carried on in the Sunday School.

As the different denominations became conscious of the vital importance of the Sunday School in the work of the church, Sunday School Boards were established and organizations perfected in each of the leading denominations for the promotion of the work as a part of its denominational program. Finally, these denominational Sunday School Boards were federated in the Sunday School Council of Evangelical Denominations, a purely interdenominational organization.

These two great organizations in the field of Sunday School work naturally caused an overlapping of interests and activities, and to overcome this condition and promote efficiency and Christian unity, they were merged into the International Sunday School Council of Religious Education.

This new organization represents the entire organized Sunday School work of the North American continent, and is the officially accredited agency of thirty-four Protestant Christian denominations in the field of co-operative, interdenominational work in Religious Education, including the Sunday School, the Vacation Bible School and the Week Day School of Religion. Each denomination continues to develop and promote its own program in Religious Education, but all agree to carry on the co-operative, interdenominational work through the International Council.

The International Council has two principal Committees. The International Lesson Committee is recognized as the curricula or lesson-creating Committee for all the age groups in the different phases of the work. The Committee on Education develops and recommends plans and programs for interdenominational work, including standards, curricula for teacher and leadership training, and research. The recommendations of the Committee on Education must be adopted by the International Executive Committee before becoming effective.

The bringing together in a co-operative effort of these great forces in the field of Religious Education has added a tremendous interest and impetus to the work and the prospects are most encouraging for the development of an effective system of Religious Education throughout the continent that will ultimately compare favorably from an educational standpoint with the systems of general education that have been developed.

*LEADERSHIP TRAINING

The increasing importance attached to the value and necessity of religious education challenges the Christian Church to discover and equip a leadership commensurate with the demands of our time. This leadership will consist of both voluntary and professional workers—those who regard religious education as an avocation, to which they devote a portion of their time, and those who regard religious education as a vocation, to which they give full time and for which vocational preparation is made. The progress of religious education depends upon the adequacy with which the teachers, supervisors and administrators of these two types of leaders are prepared for their respective tasks.

I. Training Courses

As an agency of interdenominational co-operation, the International Sunday School Council of Religious Education has adopted two types of training courses to assist in meeting these needs and conditions—the Standard Training Course and the Advanced Training Course.

A. The Standard Training Course

The Standard Training Course consists of 120 lessons, organized into 12 course units of 10 lessons each or its equivalent, one-third of which is devoted to the specialized study of some one department of the church school.

Outline specifications are as follows:

1. Required General Courses.

(1) An Introduction to the Bible. (This should give an understanding of the occasion which brought forth the messages of the various books, and the background of ideas current when they were written; their unique value among the religious writings of the world; the history of their influence on mankind; an appreciation of their literary form and beauty; a knowledge of the canon of selection, how the manuscripts were preserved and translated; the stages of perfecting the English version; and a simple statement of principles of interpretation.) (Thirty lessons, or one unit.)
(2) The Use of the Bible in Religious Education. (Why do we use the Bible in religious education? What are the different types of educational forces (such, for example, as its ideas, its historical events, its personalities, etc.) in the Bible? What are the materials of largest use for each of the several age groups? What are the sources of personal power and the Christian character values for the several age groups of the different parts of the Bible (such, for example, as the Devotional Literature, the Prophetic Literature, the Gospels, etc.?) (Thirty lessons, or one unit.)
(3) The History and Principles of Religious Education. (This should include enough of the general history of education to show the great changes which have taken place in the concepts of child life and nurture, and of education as a growing, changing, dynamic process. (Thirty lessons, or one unit.)

The educational concept of the work of the church should be made dominant in the thinking of teachers and leaders. This course should also show how the local church may correlate its programs of instruction, worship, recreation, sociability and service to produce Christian ideals and habits in the community and the world.) To members of denominational classes whose work meets the educational standard of the International Council, the International Council upon request of the members made through the offices of the denominational boards, will grant in addition the International Sunday School Council diploma.

The regular train leaves Boston at 9:00 a. m. on the White Mountain Division of the Boston & Main Railroad, and arrives at The Weirs, about 12:30 p. m. Students should arrange to arrive at The Weirs, Lake Winnipesaukee, during the middle of the day so as to catch the regular line of boats running from The Weirs to Melvin Village. (The large steamer, "Washington," does not make this trip.) Last summer the boat for Melvin Village, which carries our passengers, left The Weirs about 2.00 p. m., after the arrival of the noon trains.

Only the one boat makes regular trips as stated above. Passengers arriving at The Weirs at other times can secure special service by motor boats. Parties desiring to come by automobile should leave the train at Meredith and hire transportation (16 miles) to the Training School property.

THE WEEK-DAY RELIGIOUS SCHOOLS

An accurate history of Week-Day Religious Instruction would of necessity go back many years to consider the work done by the Catholics, the Lutherans and the Jews in their parochial schools or in after-school classes at the Church, but the term Week Day Religious Schools has a more limited meaning and is applied to the new movement among the Protestant churches which has grown up in the last twelve years. It differs from the Daily Vacation Bible Schools in three respects, chiefly:

1. It parallels the public school year, the classes being operated usually from September to June.

2. In the length of periods for each session. The classes are held once or twice a week for periods varying from one-half hour to one hour and a half.

3. In the time devoted to expressional activities. With the longer daily session of the Daily Vacation Bible School, much more time can be given to this line of work.

The first attempt among the Protestant churches to give Religious Instruction during the school year, an attempt which attracted widespread attention, was "The North Dakota Plan for High School Credit in Bible Study," initiated in 1911. "Through the influence of Vernon P. Squires, a professor in the University of North Dakota, the State Board of Education prepared a syllabus and authorized that a certain limited amount of high school credit (one-half unit) should be given to any one passing an examination on the historical and literary facts of the Bible indicted in the syllabus. The work could be taken in the Sunday School, or outside of it under carefully defined conditions, and credit would be awarded upon the passing of an examination conducted by the State."[1] Another experiment conducted at the same time is known as the "Colorado Plan." "In September, 1910, Dr. D. D. Forward, a Baptist pastor in Greeley, Colorado, suggested to the authorities of the State Teachers' College, located in that city, that if they would credit his work he would teach a class in Bible in his own church. The plan was accepted and in September, 1911, two hundred and fifty students elected the course of Bible Study on Jesus, sixty of this number being members of the Roman Catholic Church. The popularity of the plan led to its extension so as to include high school credit, and a committee was appointed through the influence of the Colorado Sunday School Association to standardize the requirements for giving high school credit to Bible study taken in the Sunday School. Catholics and Protestants united in formulating the standards, and many classes began to take work for credit."[2]

These plans were not as successful as they bade fair to be, partly because the credit was limited to Bible Study and did not include the larger term, "Religious Instruction," and partly because the idea of credit loomed larger in the minds of some than more important phases of the work. The question of legal difficulties also began to be discussed, so that the movement was dropped about 1916, chiefly through lack of interest. The work carried on thus far had been for high school pupils; no attempt had been made to reach younger boys and girls. It was left for Gary, a city only eight years old sprung from the dunes of Indiana, to try this experiment.

On October 19th, 1913, a meeting of the ministers of Gary and the Superintendent of Public Schools was called by Dr. Avann, the pastor of the Methodist Church, to consider a purely local problem, more adequate religious instruction for the boys and girls. How significant that meeting really was no one realized, for it marked the beginning of a movement which has spread from one coast to the other and has even crossed the water to other countries. While this Week-Day Religious movement may still be considered in its infancy, so many problems yet remain to be worked out, it has progressed far enough to give a vision of the far-reaching possibilities that lie within it for reaching the boys and girls and giving to them the kind of training which shall develop in them dependable Christian conduct and train them for Christian citizenship.

Types of Organization

As the movement has developed, four distinct types of organization have evolved, growing out of the different kinds of communities:

1. The denominational or individual Church type. This includes the schools conducted by the various churches, each school absolutely independent of any other. It is usually governed by some organization within the church—a Board of Religious Education, a Committee, a Religious Educational Director, or possibly the pastor.

2. The denominational, co-operating Group type. In reality each school belongs to Type 1, but the churches have come together in a loose federation to promote common interests—often for the purpose of making a united request to the School Board for released time for these religious classes. There is no general governing Board, each church manages its own school, uses its own course of study and ministers to the children of its own constituency. Batavia, Illinois, is a good example of this type.

3. The neighborhood or city type. The schools in this type lose their denominational character and merge with the other churches in a common course of study, a common budget, common centers beside each public school, irrespective of denomination, and teachers engaged without reference to their denominational affiliations. There is a governing Board made up of representatives from the various co-operating churches. These schools are financed by subscriptions or a pro rata assessment levied upon the several churches uniting. Gary, Indiana, is an example of this type of organization.

4. The pure community type. This type has a common course of study and a single governing board. The Board, however, does not represent the churches, but the community at large. In most cases this type is not representative of the community, but of the Protestant portion. There are very few of this type in existence now, some that were organized in this way having changed to Type 3.

Number of Schools

Fortunately, this movement has spread comparatively slow, for one of the greatest dangers attending it has been enthusiasm without proper preparation and a long look into the future. At the last meeting of the Religious Education Association it was reported that as nearly as could be estimated there were at that time 1,000 different schools, or schools conducted under separate governing boards. Undoubtedly with the opening of the fall work this number has been greatly increased.

Aims

In these schools, the aims have been almost as varied and numerous as the schools, but among them the following have appeared most prominently.

1. To teach the Bible.
2. To cultivate denominational loyalty.
3. To extend the Sunday School hour.
4. To act as a feeder to the Church and the Sunday School.
5. To increase Church membership.

Much of this variety of aim is a result of a limited and erroneous conception of what is included in the term "religious education." However, in the last year or two one great aim has gradually been evolving, i. e., to develop dependable Christian conduct now, so that future Christian conduct and Christian citizenship may be assured. All that was essential in the lesser aims will be included in this larger one, and everything in material and in method which will help to produce this desired end will be retained.

Time

Two hours a week on two different days has proven to be the most satisfactory amount and arrangement of time. The hour session gives time for worship, the regular lesson period and some form of expressional work, all done without undue haste. Where the two-hour periods are not possible, much is being accomplished in two half-hour periods during the school day or before or after school.

The ideal time for these classes is during the school day, in released public school time. This may be during the "play hours" as in Gary; during academic time as in Van Wert, Ohio, or in Batavia, Illinois; or the last hour of the day, as in Toledo. There are many cities that have been unable to secure these privileges from their school boards, and are forced to hold their classes before and after school and at noon. It will be a matter of time, education and public opinion before adjustments are made. Since in many places the public school officials rather than the churches are taking the initial steps in promoting these Week-Day Religious classes, there is great cause for hope and encouragement that in the near future a plan may be evolved satisfactory to both the religious and the secular schools.

Buildings and Equipment

The matter of buildings has been and will remain a problem. Some communities have tried to solve it by using a room in the public school buildings during the day or before and after school. This has been feasible in a few places, but it seems an unwise precedent to establish in these years when policies are being formulated for the future. In the judgment of the majority, it is safer to do nothing which might be open to criticism, and the use of public school property for religious purposes is infringing on the spirit if not the letter of the law in regard to separation of Church and State. The privilege granted to one denomination must be granted to all, and in some communities a serious entanglement might result.

The ideal building is one adjacent to the public school, with rooms suitable in size, equipment and atmosphere for the work that is to be done and the end desired. This may be a church or a building erected for the purpose, if no other building is available.

Teachers

Experience has proved that the most satisfactory work is done with teachers who have chosen this line of work as a profession, who are specially trained for it and who are giving all their time to it. Full time teachers, of course, can be profitably employed only when classes are held during the school day. Part time teachers who are public school teachers or ex-school teachers, and who are paid by the hour, prove a good solution to the teacher problem. Purely voluntary help is not wise; the work is worthy of some remuneration.

Finances

In communities in which Type 3 or the neighborhood or city type of Week-Day Schools is followed, the matter of financing the work has not been satisfactorily worked out. If the churches uniting in this plan are strong and vitally interested, the budget has been successfully, and in many places, very easily raised by pro-rating the amount among the various churches. This has been done in Dayton and Van Wert, Ohio, and in Berkeley, California. In less fortunate communities, where many of the churches are themselves not self supporting, and where there is a very large foreign population, a general campaign has seemed the only feasible plan. The responsibility in every community must rest ultimately upon the church, because the task of giving to the boys and girls adequate Religious Education belongs to the Church, and to the Church alone.

In deciding a budget, the aim should not be to do the work as cheaply as possible, but as well as possible. It has been found that two hours of instruction per week, under full-time, specially trained teachers, can be given at a cost of $5.00 per child per year, or $60.00 per child from first grade through the High School.

Curriculum

The concensus of opinion seems to be that the curriculum for these Week-Day Religious Schools is still in an experimental stage, and it is fortunate. If mere information were the aim, the problem would be simple, but when conduct and character are the goals, theories must be verified by experiment and experience. The attempt to avoid duplication of the material usually given on Sunday, and at the same time correlate the Week-Day and Sunday teaching, has complicated the problem. Various denominations are working on the matter and are preparing their own courses, the Presbyterian, Baptist, Episcopal and Congregational perhaps being the best known. The only courses planned primarily for community work are the Abingdon Series and the Gary Lesson Leaflets, both published by the Abingdon Press.

Outlook for the Future

While great progress has been made since the first school was organized ten years ago, there are a few pressing questions, aside from those already mentioned, that must be answered before this new movement can be assured a permanent place. These are:

1. Correlation with the Sunday School.
2. Correlation with the other agencies in the community working for the welfare of the children and young people, such as the Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, Girl Reserves.
3. Co-operation with the home.

If this new organization can be correlated with these other agencies—the home, the school and the church, which are the permanent institutions, so that there shall be no duplication and no wasted effort, but all may work together toward the one great goal, Christian character and Christian conduct in every boy and girl—then there is at our hand one of the most powerful agencies for good that has yet come into existence in recent years.

MARY E. ABERNETHY.

THE EXPERIMENT IN GARY, INDIANA

A meeting of the ministers and Mr. Wirt, the Superintendent of Schools, called by Dr. Avann, the pastor of the First Methodist Church in Gary, was held on October 19th, 1913, to consider more adequate Religious Education for the children. At this meeting Mr. Wirt granted each church the privilege of giving religious instruction to the children of its constituency at two of their play hours each week on the condition that a suitably trained teacher be provided and that the parents give their consent to the attendance of their children. All the Protestant churches, the Methodist and Presbyterian Settlement Houses and the Jewish Synagogue eagerly accepted this proposition and began at once to formulate plans. Rev. J. M. Johnson, pastor of the Reformed Church, has the honor of being the first to begin work, opening classes the next morning, October 20th, 1913, with an enrollment of twelve seventh and eighth grade pupils in an 8:15 class. The two Settlement Houses followed in two or three weeks. Rev. M. Krause, pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian Church started a training class within two weeks, that he might have teachers for the Week-Day Religious classes which he organized some months later. The Baptists, also, began work in the Spring of 1914. In the following Fall, the Christian, Presbyterian, Methodist, Congregational, Episcopal and United Presbyterian churches opened classes, four of the churches waiting until full time workers could be secured, Mr. Myron Settle organizing the work in the Christian Church, Mr. Owens in the Presbyterian, Mr. Harry Webb Farrington in the Methodist and Miss Vera Noyes in the Episcopal.

The work continued in the various churches for three years, with more or less success, during which time the classes in three churches had to be given up because the extra burden of teaching was too heavy for the pastors. Meanwhile, there was a growing conviction that the plan being followed was not the most efficient, because,

1. There was a duplication of effort. Six churches and from nine to fifteen teachers were caring for children from one school while the other schools were practically untouched.

2. Only a small number of children were being reached, 750 being the highest total enrollment.

3. The burden of teaching was too heavy for the pastors.

4. The financial burden involved in a trained teacher and proper equipment was too great for individual churches.

Accordingly, in 1917, agitation was started for a co-operative or community school among the Protestant churches. After many meetings and much discussion, five of the original eight churches—the Methodist, Congregational, Presbyterian, Christian and United Presbyterian, and the Neighborhood House, decided to combine; a Board of Religious Education consisting of the pastor, superintendent, and two lay members from each co-operating congregation, was appointed; a principal, Mary Elizabeth Abernethy, who had been conducting the work for a year and a half in the Methodist Church, and three teachers, were elected—May K. Cowles, who later organized the work in Van Wert, Ohio; Maude McLaughlin, and Jeanette Welter. Meeting places were chosen beside three of the largest school buildings (a new building was erected beside one school), proper equipment and supplies were obtained, and in September, 1917, three community centers were opened. This first year, 800 children were cared for by the three teachers and the principal. The second year, 1918-1919, four new centers were opened, the Faculty was increased to five full time teachers and one or two part time, and the enrollment grew to 2,100. In 1919-1920 one more center was opened, making a total of eight, one more teacher was added to the Faculty, and the total enrollment reached 3,100. In the spring of 1921-22 two additional centers were opened, making a total of ten and an enrollment for the year of 3,700. Owing to the financial stress in Gary in 1922-23, it was found necessary to reduce the Faculty and decrease the centers to eight. This reduction, together with the fact that the Catholics had opened schools similar to the Protestant schools beside five of the public schools and were using every possible means to get hold of the nominally Catholic and the unchurched children, lessened the enrollment in the Protestant religious schools to 3,200.

In the fall of 1923-24 nine centers were opened, a Faculty of eight full-time teachers and six part-time teachers was secured and already, December 6th, the highest total enrollment is nearly 4,000. If the Board of Religious Education had been financially able to open centers beside the other five public schools where the parents and children are all asking for it, the enrollment would easily approach the 6,000 mark.

For four years all the white English-speaking Protestant churches, with the exception of the Episcopal church, which is conducting its own school, have united in this community plan.

This year, for the first time, the High School work is being stressed, and while the classes are still small, only a few over one hundred being enrolled, the membership is growing each week. At present the classes for High School boys are being conducted by Laurence Tracy Nutting a student in the graduate department of the University of Chicago, and for High School girls by Miss Effie Wood, an ex-High School teacher, a college graduate, and a former student of the Chicago Training School.

Organization

After six and one-half years' experience the same general plan of organization seems to be the best—a Board of Religious Education made up of four representatives from each co-operating congregation; an executive committee and a finance committee. The full Board meets three times a year; it elects teachers, determines the policies of the school and decides on the budget. The executive committee meets once a month or on call and conducts all the regular business which does not come before the full Board. The Finance committee meets monthly or oftener if necessary.

Administration

With a few exceptions every pupil from first grade through the eighth has two periods of instruction each week, varying in length from forty to fifty-five minutes, depending on the distance of the center from the public school. Some of the eighth grade classes and all the High School classes are limited by their Public School schedule to one hour a week. The grade pupils come at their so-called "play periods"—at the hour that they would otherwise be having free play.

For convenience and from necessity many of the grades are combined into groups. Group I consisting of grades 1 and 2; Group II, of grades 3 and 4, etc.

Five out of the eight full-time teachers teach two days each at two different schools, the fifth day being reserved for calling in the homes.

The following is a typical schedule for two teachers:

JEFFERSON	EMERSON
MONDAY AND TUESDAY	TUESDAY AND FRIDAY	THURSDAY
Miss Wood and Miss Welter	Miss Welter and Miss Wood
8:15—Grade 5	Grade 5	----------
9:15—Grade 6	Grade 2b	----------
10:15—Grade 6	Grade 2a	----------
1:15—Grade 3	Grade 2a	----------
2:15—Grade 4	Grade 3b	----------
3:15—Grade 5	Grade 5	----------
Grade 5	Grade 6 and 7
Grade 1	Grade 3
Grade 1	Grade 4
Grade 2a	Grade 4a and 5b
Grade 2	Grade 3
Grade 4	Grade 6a and 7b

For three or four weeks before Christmas and Easter the Community Church School, at the request of the Superintendent of the Public School, takes all the kindergarten children whose parents desire to have them come, to give them the religious significance of those two days. Every child who attends must have a card signed by the parents expressing their wish to have him excused from school to permit him to have religious instruction. These signed cards are kept in the office of the public school principals.

Finances

Finances remain the most difficult problem, for with a population of 79 per cent colored or foreign, from which no help can be asked in this work, it places a very heavy burden upon the White Protestant churches, some of which are not even self-supporting. Gary will always remain a home mission city.

Three sources of income have been found—the churches, the industries and the friends of the school outside the church. A financial campaign has been held each year to complete the raising of the budget. Some help has also been received from the various denominational Boards, for Gary has been looked upon as an experimental station.

Curriculum

When the community work was started in Gary, in 1917, there was no course of study. For two or three years the teachers worked from mere outlines, keeping a record of lessons and material used, which was largely biblical, for at that time, to most people, Religious Education meant just one thing, the teaching of the Bible, and it is probable that the churches would have united on no other basis. Finally there was such a demand from other places where Religious classes were being started, for some course of lessons, that this material was put into more permanent form and called "The Gary Lesson Leaflets." The second year's course for each group was produced in the same way. These lessons are being radically revised now, for while character development was always uppermost in the minds of the teachers, it was difficult at times, with the type of lessons, not to have information play the prominent part.

Results

Material results, being more evident, come to mind first.

1. Increase in Sunday School enrollment.
2. Increase in regularity of attendance at Sunday School and in reverent attitude.
3. Love for the Bible, growing out of a knowledge of the Bible. Hundreds of Bibles have been bought by the children, the majority going into homes where there had never been a Bible. This increased knowledge of the Bible has resulted in the resignation of some of the Sunday School teachers who say the children know more about the Bible than they do.
4. A great interest in missionary work and a desire to serve by gifts and prayers. Hundreds of dollars—the children's voluntary gifts—have been sent to different mission stations.

5. A growing feeling of responsibility for helping conditions in the local community.

6. A developing feeling of citizenship manifesting itself by helping to keep the streets and alleys clean, caring for public property.

7. Increase in church membership.

Results in individual character are less tangible, only time can show what has been accomplished but public school teachers and principals as well as parents speak of changes in the children's conduct which they have noted.

One Catholic mother says: "My little girl had the reputation of being the most quarrelsome child in the neighborhood but since she has been attending the Community Church School, there has been a wonderful change in her." A Principal says: "There has been a decided diminution in lying, stealing and quarreling among the children who attend the Community Church School."

Another Principal says: "Before the Church School was organized at my school it was unsafe for the pupils to leave anything of value in their lockers, but now we have very little trouble with stealing."

Correlation

Because fully half of the children attending the Week Day Religious Schools do not attend Sunday School, the matter of correlation with the Sunday work is very difficult, and no satisfactory plan has as yet been worked out, though several are under consideration.

Co-operation with the Home

Until the home is working with the Church and the Week-Day Religious classes, the greatest amount of good can not be accomplished. With the view of interesting the parents and learning the conditions of the homes, so that the work may be more intelligent one day a week is reserved by the teachers for calling.

This fall, letters and an enclosed card have been sent into the homes explaining to the mothers what particular lines of conduct are being considered in the Week Day Religious Schools, and requesting that on the enclosed card the mothers report to the teachers any improvement or difficulties that the child is manifesting, that they may work together for the welfare of the children.

THE MALDEN PLAN

This plan has as its organization a Community Council of Religious Education which enrolls, on a voluntary basis, as many Protestant Christian Citizens of the community as possible. All ministers, Sunday School superintendents, church school teachers and officers and as many active church workers as can be interested in the cause of religious education are members of this Council. Early in its history the Council adopted the following program of work:

1. The development of a community system of religious education.

2. The unification of all child welfare agencies of the city in the interests of the largest efficiency.

3. The supervision of a complete religious census of the city with special references to the religious needs of children and young people.

4. The direction of educational, industrial and social surveys, for the purpose of securing the facts upon which a constructive community program can be based.

5. The study of recreational and social conditions of the city, the training of local leaders and the building of a scientific, well-balanced program of work, study and play for the children of the city.

6. The creation of a community consciousness on matters of moral and religious education.

The Council elects a Board of Directors, which in turn elects a City Superintendent of Religious Education who has in charge the development of a complete city system of Religious Education.

The Malden Plan is described in detail in "A National System of Education," by Dr. Walter S. Athearn.

GRAND RAPIDS (MICHIGAN) PLAN

The accredited representatives in charge of Week Day Schools of Religious Education of eight churches of Grand Rapids, united to adopt the following principles and platform as a guide for the work conducted in their city:

1. Each school is a separate entity for which the local church is responsible.

2. The local church should assume the entire financial obligation for its school.

3. The "Denominational-Co-operative" School is accepted as the model, allowing the privilege of federated work between two or more churches of the same or different denominations.

4. There shall be an advisory Board formed, as a common ground between the Churches in the Week Day School work, in co-operation with the Public Schools. This Board, while not fixing the curriculum, shall aim to set up and maintain standards for the furtherance and general improvement of the work. It shall further aim to develop harmony and complete co-operation between the churches conducting these schools, and also between them and the public schools of the city. It shall be composed of the ministers and one other representative from each church conducting a Week Day School in co-operation with the public schools. The Superintendent of Schools shall be, ex-officio, a member. If the platform is endorsed by the County Sunday School Association, there may be an additional member chosen by, and representing them.

5. What is meant by "Week Day School Co-operation?" The responsibility of this work rests primarily on the home. The home requests the Church to provide religious instruction, as the collective homes of the community request the providing of public school instruction.

The home requests the public school to assign a certain part of the public school time of the child for his religious instruction.

There shall be a card signed for each child by his parent or guardian, requesting that this time be assigned each week by the public school, for this purpose and directing where the child is to go to receive this instruction.

6. The leaders recommended Wednesday as the best day of the week, and the superintendent of schools issued his Bulletin No. 3, dated September 1, 1923, directing the children to be excused from the public schools, Wednesdays as follows:

Grades 1 and 2—Opening of school to recess—at 10:15
Grades 5 and 6—Recess to noon
Grades 3 and 4—From 1:10 to recess at 2:15
Grades 7 and 8—From recess to the close of school.
High School grades excused on the last hour, Friday.

7. The Ideal Toward which We Eventually Strive is that the weekly schedule or days on which each grade shall attend their instruction shall be mutually agreed upon by the Board, and approved by the superintendent of schools; so that on the same day the same grades will be in attendance at all schools.

8. As This Is Public School Time, and the public is responsible for the oversight of the child's full public school time, tardiness or absence should receive the same attention as given by the public school. A note shall be sent that day to the principal of the public school, stating that the pupil is absent and desiring the reason.

9. The Subject Matter Taught in the Church School will be entirely under the control and direction of the authorities of the respective Churches; but should be submitted to the superindentent of schools, if he desires, for his suggestions and approval.

10. The Public School Authorities reserve the right to deny the privilege of attending the Week Day School to any student not properly using the privilege thus granted.

11. The Week Day Course of Study should be a carefully graded course, and should be correlated with the child's work in the Sunday Session.

12. The Physical Equipment of the Week Day School. Class rooms and the conduct of the class work will be open to, and subject to the suggestions, of the superintendent of schools. The ideal toward which we strive is that the equipment of the class room shall meet the child's physical needs.

13. The question of normal or college training and professional experience of the Teacher is important and we urge as high standards as possible. The first requisite is the teacher's ability to create such a sincere and reverent attitude on the part of the child, and such an atmosphere in the class as will bring him to respect and appreciate his work. He should recognize the need to study seriously, (a) the child, (b) the subject he is to teach, and (c) the art of teaching the subject.

14. Accurate records of attendance and of grades should be kept, and should be open to the inspection of the parents and of the public school authorities, and should be sent them when they so desire.

CHATTANOOGA (TENNESSEE) PLAN

This work in Chattanooga is under the supervision of a Bible Study Committee, composed of one representative from the Y. M. C. A., the Y. W. C. A., the Pastors' Association, and one from the Public Schools. The plan, in the form of an ordinance drawn by the City Attorney General, instructed by the City Commission, authorizes the Commissioner of Education to grant to such established religions as may apply for the privilege, the opportunity to give courses of instruction in subjects pertaining to their religion in the Schools of the city, provided that two or more standard religions may combine for the purpose of giving such courses of instruction. The courses in these subjects are to be prescribed by the representatives of the religions applying for the privilege, and the teacher shall be provided for and paid by the representatives of these religions. The election of teachers, however, is subject to the approval of the Commissioner of Education. All expenses of whatever kind, incident to teaching of the subject shall be borne by the representatives of the religion, but the Commissioner of Education is authorized to furnish rooms in the high school building where such classes may be held and furnish light and janitor service for the room. The conduct of the classes in these courses and the examinations shall be subject to the discipline, rules and regulations governing the school.

There is one full time teacher, who has six periods a day divided among the 150 students enrolling for the work in the High School. There are three other part-time teachers, spending a day at a school, going from grade to grade. Two thousand, seven hundred and fifty Children are taking the work. Each child receives a card outlining the work to be studied at home, with a space for the signature of the parent who has heard the lesson recited there.

The Committee as as follows:

J. P. McCallie, Chairman, Missionary Ridge, Chattanooga, Tennessee; Mrs. W. E. Brock, Dr. E. A. Elmore, Dr. W. L. Pickard, Mrs. L. M. Russell.

JENKINTOWN (PENNSYLVANIA) PLAN

The Week Day Bible School, with public school time, was introduced in September, 1922. The Protestant Churches requested the Board of Education to pass a resolution granting one hour per week to the children in the grades 1 to 8, for religious instruction upon the written request of their parents or guardian. Such a resolution was passed.

The public school teacher escorts the children in her grade to the chapel, and after the 50 minutes at the chapel, the children are escorted by the teacher of the Week Day Bible School to the school. The Bible School meets in the chapel nearest the school building on Thursday of each week. The School is the interdenominational community type, and is under the Community Council of Religious Education of the town. This Council is composed of five representatives, of whom the pastor is one, of each of the co-operating churches, and the four members at large. There are two teachers, trained in the knowledge of the Bible and pedagogy, and one volunteer worker to assist the teacher in the first four grades.

Of 365 pupils enrolled in the public schools, 297 are enrolled in the Bible School. There is a strong Catholic parochial school in the town.

For further information concerning the School, address the principal, Mrs. Henry Moehling, Jenkintown, Pennsylvania.

DAYTON, OHIO, PLAN

History

The Week Day Schools of Religion of Dayton, Ohio, are conducted under the auspices of the Sunday School Council of Religious Education for the county, formerly the Sunday School Association. For several years this organization has conducted a system of daily vacation Bible schools, and these proved to be a stepping stone to the newer movement. In September, 1922, Mr. I. S. Richmond, the Executive Secretary of the association, employed Miss Blanche Carrier, Bachelor of Religious Education from Boston University, as supervisor of the city system. The first year one demonstration school was conducted and taught by Miss Carrier. The second year has seen its growth into a system of ten schools with nearly thirty-five hundred children, and the plans for even greater expansion for next year.

Organization and Administration

The Sunday School Council has a board or committee on Week Day Schools, embracing some of the best educational talent of the city. This committee passes upon matters pertaining to the schools, with such matters as affect finance referred to the board of trustees of the council. The supervisor has found splendid co-operation from the public school system. A complete system of reports is worked out by the two schools; the Week Day School sends daily and bi-monthly reports to the principals and superintendent of public schools. The children receive their bi-monthly report cards from the Week Day School of Religion, being graded on note book work, recitation, memory work, conduct and attitude, and special service. These are sent home to be signed by the parents and returned. Teachers are employed for various grades and are moved from one center to another as are special teachers in the public schools.

The Week Day Schools are held in local churches chosen for their locality and adaptability the equipment being supplied by the Council. In many cases one church draws the children of two public buildings; in some cases from one.

The schedule of classes is made by the supervisor in conference with the principals. Each child receives one hour each week; classes are limited to thirty-five in number.

Finance

The budget for the Week Day School of Religion is $10,000 for the current school year. This money is raised by subscription through a financial campaign conducted by the Council each spring. Subscriptions are made by individuals, city churches, Sunday Schools, business, and fraternal organizations.

The teachers are paid the same salaries as public school teachers.

Curricula

The curricula for Week Day School is being worked out by the supervisor with the aid of her teachers. No one textbook is used by any grade and none are used by the children. The material is arranged thematically through grade five, with chronological study beginning in grade six. In addition to the Biblical material these courses include Biblical geography, and interpretation of Hymns and Religious Art Masterpieces. The following are the titles of the courses:

Grade 1, 2—God, the Heavenly Father.

Grade 3—Learning to Live Together.
Grade 4—Citizens of God's World.
Grade 5—Heroes of God's World.
Grade 6—Life of Christ.
Grade 7—Old Testament History.
Grade 8—Study of Christianity, beginning with the Apostolic Church.

Statistics

For the first year the enrollment was 550 with one teacher and part time assistant. The percentage of attendance for the year was 88 per cent. Twenty-eight per cent of the children come from homes not actively affiliated with any church and ten per cent were not attending Sunday School at the opening of the school year. For the second year the enrollment for the first two months is 3,422; there are 115 classes each week in 10 centers with children coming from 15 public schools. One of these schools is a centralized rural school where classes are held in the school building. There are employed 15 teachers—five full time and ten part time. The percentage of attendance for the first two months is 88.7 with 1,872 pupils neither absent nor tardy.

BATAVIA PLAN

Batavia Plan of Religious Education (Batavia, Illinois) gives to each denomination control of the religious training of its own children, and provides that mid-week classes shall be held on the same day of the week. Only one organization in the city declines to avail itself of the opportunity to train its children.

Scholars of grades 1 and 2 come from home to the church of the parents' choice at 9 a. m. and remain until 10:30, when they go to the grade schools. Grades 3 and 4 come from school to church at 10:45 and go home at noon. Similarly grades 5 and 6 are in classes from 1:10 until 2:30 and grades 7 and 8 from 2:45 until 4.

These absences from the public schools are authorized by the School Board, who have, however, no control of the courses used, except that these are approved by the Superintendent of Schools, but both Board and Superintendent urge a continuously higher standard of teaching in these schools of religion. In this connection it may be added that all the teachers in the school conducted by the Episcopal church have had professional training and experience.

Each denomination has its own course of study, Abingdon, Scribner Standard and University of Chicago texts all finding a place. The Roman Catholics have their own course of instruction as have the Lutherans, and the Episcopal church uses its own Christian Nurture series. This Thursday hour gives as well a much needed opportunity for expressional work.

Since each school is in effect an extension of the Sunday session, guidance and government are in the individual congregation, though matters of general concern are dealt with by a monthly meeting of pastors and teachers, the chairman of which is the Superintendent of Schools.

Of the approximately 1,000 children in the grade schools, about 85 per cent are enrolled for religious education. The attendance is exactly the same as in the grade schools, since absence from either one without permission is truancy.

The Batavia plan appeals especially to Roman Catholics and Lutherans, since it obviates the necessity of building parochial schools, and maintaining them.

WEEK DAY RELIGIOUS SCHOOLS OUTSIDE OF PUBLIC SCHOOL HOURS

The Protestant Teachers' Association of New York City is conducting about twenty-two week-day religious schools, after school hours. The Schools are held in churches where the pastor and congregation lend their support. The teachers are paid by the Protestant Teachers' Association, although some of them give their time. The attendance in half the schools averages between 50 and 60, and in the remainder from 25 to 40. In many cases the schools are held in the same location and with about the same children interested as in the Daily Vacation Bible School the preceding summer. The church in which it is held assists to the extent of providing the building, and joining in a closing exercise, when the collection is given to the Protestant Teachers' Association. The program consists of half an hour worship period, half an hour for lesson and memory work, and half an hour for the handwork period, which may be varied by gymnasium or dramatic expressional activities, according to the physical equipment of the church in which the school is held. The nucleus of the class is recruited through publicity in the Sunday School and churches interested, and after the first day, the children are invited to bring their playmates, with the understanding that on Sundays they are to continue to attend their regular churches.

For further information, address Miss Mary E. Newton, Director, 211 West Fifty-sixth Street, New York City.

STANDARDS AND TERMINOLOGY

The Field Men appointed by the various denominations for the promotion of Week-Day Church Schools, have held informal conferences on several occasions. In these conferences general experiences and personal convictions have been presented for discussion. From these discussions certain general conclusions have been reached to which unanimous consent has been given. These conclusions are based on failures which should be avoided and on practices in successful operation. These conferences have no official denominational sanction, but the conclusions reached in them are being acted upon by the Field Men in their promotion work, with gratifying results.

A Suggested Platform for General Use

The following is a platform of principles adopted as a working basis for Week-Day Religious Education in New York City:

We hold these facts to be self-evident:

1. Upon the home must primarily rest the responsibility for religious instruction and training.
2. The public school came into existence to assist the home and State in the interests of the child.
3. When the home and the school are unable to give the child a necessary life equipment, the need of which they mutually agree upon, co-operation is necessary.
4. By co-operation, we mean that the public school authorities shall assign to the pupils upon the definite request of the child's parent or guardian a portion of his school time as shall be mutually agreed upon by the parent and school authorities, and at such place as may be indicated by the parent.
5. The importance of securing school time is to emphasize in the eyes of the child, (parent and teacher; editor), that religion is part of his daily "business," and opportunity for larger self expression.

BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED: That this statement be considered as a platform on which the representatives of the various denominational committees shall stand unitedly in hearings arranged by the Board of Education.

RESOLVED: That this statement of facts setting forth the convictions of representatives of the commitees on Week-Day Religious Schools appointed by the various Protestant communions be adopted. It is understood that we welcome and encourage all efforts put forth for any religious education outside of the public school hours.

Religious Education

The term "Religious Education" has become technical. Its content is the educational program of the local church within itself and in its functioning in immediate relations. While Religious Education thus includes the entire educational program of the local church, there are major sessions through which it functions which are at the focus of attention at the present time, thus: Sunday School and Week-Day sessions. Under Week-Day sessions there are three, namely, "session in vacation," "released time" and "play time." The organization within the local church and a central organization of co-operating churches within a district, for the promotion of one or all of these three sessions, should be the same.

The Week-Day Church School sessions are being carried on with every conceivable modification of organization and administration, but in spite of this fact they come fairly well under three types as to community relations.

The following description was prepared by denominational field workers in Week-Day Church Schools, December 10, 1921, and reaffirmed October 19, 1923.

"Aim: The aim of the Church School in both Sunday and Week-Day sessions is Christian nurture in a twofold direction: (1) To care for those already within its own constituency, and (2) To reach out for those yet untouched religiously.

"Place: The place of Religious Education in the program of the Church: We believe that Week-Day Religious Instruction should be an integral part of the educational program of the individual church; that this instruction should be so correlated with Sunday instruction and the expressional activities of the individual church as to create a Church School having Sunday and Week-Day sessions with provisions for expressional activities.

"Type I. The denominational or individual church type of Week-Day School is that in which Week-Day Religious Instruction is a part of the educational program of an individual church without co-operation with other churches.

"Type II. The denominational co-operative or district school is one in which the denomination provides the curriculum and internal administration for which the pastor is responsible, while the general promotion and standardization of plans and other acceptable elements are under the direction of an advisory board of religious education officially representative of the co-operating church.

"Type III. The interdenominational school is one functioning under an interdenominational board of religious education officially representative of the co-operating churches. This board conducts the schools, selecting as a curriculum a non-denominational course."

Organization

Every community contemplating Week-Day Religious Education should give full consideration and importance to the following:

A. A central organization in every case.

B. Primary provision for the organization of Type II schools, in advisory relations with the District Board of Religious Education.

C. Provision for any group of churches to organize as interdenominational Type III Schools, under the control of the Central Board of Religious Education.

D. The one central, or district board, should function in both the advisory and mandatory relations.

The Term "Community"

The term "Community" is used in so many different senses that confusion results. It is therefore proposed that the term "district" be substituted, using it with a geographic content. It is further suggested that in organizing, the "district" be made to conform to the district of the public school, so far as possible. And the term "community" used with the content of the total population of the community, or of other units of population as a whole, and without regard to its component elements.

VACATION BIBLE AND CHURCH SCHOOLS

(Information furnished by the INTERNATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF DAILY VACATION BIBLE SCHOOLS, operating Auxiliary of the INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL COUNCIL OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION.)

Historical Sketch

The first "Vacation School" of which there is any record was held in Montreal, Canada, in 1877, in the Mount Royal School. The program consisted of twenty minutes of singing of religious hymns and songs, scripture reading and prayer, a story period, an hour for military drill for the boys and of calesthenics for the girls, an hour for manual work, a period for memorizing Bible passages and Christian hymns, closing with the National Anthem.

In 1898 a school of much the same type was held in New York City by the Rev. Howard R. Jones, located at the Epiphany Baptist Church. The organization of Daily Vacation Bible Schools as such was begun in New York City and the first active promotion work was done by the Reverend Robert G. Boville, who was then Executive Secretary of the Baptist City Missionary Society, in 1901. The Schools were conducted under this organization exclusively from 1901 to 1904.

In 1905 the Movement was organized as a Commission of the Federation of Churches and continued thus for two summers. In 1907 a National Committee was formed and the work extended to other cities, notably Philadelphia, Chicago and Boston.

In 1910 the Presbyterian Home Mission Board, the first national denominational Board to incorporate this work as part of its program, entered the field. In 1911 the National Committee was incorporated as the Daily Vacation Bible School Association. In 1912, the movement was extended to Canada. Three years later the American Baptist Publication Society took up the work actively. In 1916 and 1917 the work was carried into China and Japan by Dr. Boville.

In 1917 the name of the first promoting organization was changed to the International Association of Daily Vacation Bible Schools and was incorporated.

In 1920 the Board of Directors of the International Association, recognizing that this work was, and should be, a denominational responsibility, made a place for the official representatives of the denominations on the Board of Directors, so that they might have an authoritative voice in the policies and methods to be pursued by the Association.

In 1922, Dr. Boville withdrew from the International Association and founded a new organization.

About the same time that active promotion work was begun in New York City, an institution known as the Vacation Religious Day School, originated in certain pastor's classes held in northwestern Wisconsin, conducted by the Rev. Howard R. Vaughn, a Congregational minister. In 1908, the first fully equipped Vacation Religious Day School in which graded children's school was the main feature, was held at Ripon, Wisconsin. Since then scores of successful Schools have been held. This type of School is now being promoted by the American Institute of Religious Education.

About 1910, the first Summer Bible School was conducted by the Rev. Abraham L. Lathem, a Presbyterian minister, in Chester, Pennsylvania. Several hundred of these Schools were held during the Season of 1923.

During the last few years the various Sunday School organizations have become increasingly active in Daily Vacation Bible School work. In the larger program of Christian Education, the Daily Vacation Bible School has taken its place as one of the three divisions, Sunday, Week-day and Vacation, which make up the Church School. In 1923, at a meeting of the Executive Committee, of the International Sunday School Council of Religious Education, resolutions were adopted making the International Association of Daily Vacation Bible Schools an auxiliary of the International Council and arranging that the plans for Vacation School promotion be carried out, as far as possible, through the International Council, the accredited agency of the evangelical denominations in the field of Religious Education.

In April, 1923, the International Association of Daily Vacation Bible Schools became related to the World's Sunday School Association as the agency through which it would work in establishing Vacation Schools in countries outside of North America.

THE INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON COMMITTEE

Personnel

The International Sunday School Lesson Committee, as reorganized in 1914, has completed nine years of service. It began work with thirty-eight members; eight representing the International Sunday School Association; eight representing the Sunday School Council of Evangelical Denominations and twenty-two representing different denominational bodies. Of those thirty-eight recognized on the basis of credentials as fully qualified members at the first regular meeting, December 29, 30, 1914, there are eighteen who are still members of the present Committee. Of the other twenty, eighteen have resigned or retired from the service of the Committee and two have died in service. During this period of nine years, sixty-seven persons have been or are members of the Lesson Committee. The present number stands at forty-four. Of these forty-four, four only were members of the old Lesson Committee prior to 1914.

The question is often asked as to the composition of the present Lesson Committee respecting their official positions in the activities of life. Of the eight men originally representing the International Sunday School Association, there are four Professors; one College President; one Editor, one Judge, and one General Secretary. Of the eight men originally representing the Sunday School Council of Evangelical Denominations, there are seven Editors of Sunday School Publications and one Corresponding Secretary. Of the twenty-eight denominational bodies represented on the Committee, there are twelve Editors; five Professors; eight Secretaries of different kinds; one Chairman of a Sunday School Board; one Vice-President of a Sunday School Board; and one Pastor. To summarize these facts, the following numbers appear: Of the forty-four persons, there are twenty Editors; nine Professors, seven of them in Theological Seminaries and two in Universities; nine Secretaries of different kinds; one College President; one Judge; one Chairman of a Sunday School Board; one Vice-President of a Sunday School Board; one Corresponding Secretary, and one Pastor. Or from another point of view, the Committee consists of thirty-eight Ministers; four Laymen, and two Laywomen.

Organization of the Lesson Committee

Before the reorganization of the Lesson Committee in 1914, several courses of Graded Lessons had been issued. The Home Daily Bible Readings since 1911 had also been part of the work of the Lesson Committee. At the reorganization of the Committee, in 1914, a full set of officers was elected and is elected annually, consisting of Chairman, Vice-Chairman, Secretary, Treasurer and a Business Committee of seven persons. This apportionment of the work of the Lesson Committee to Subcommittees was adopted as a fixed policy at the very beginning of the reorganization. All of the technical work in the preparation of lessons during these years has been done through Subcommittees which report the results of their labors to the full Committee at the annual and semi-annual meetings. It has been the rule of the Lesson Committee, occasionally modified, to issue in proof form lessons tentatively adopted by the full Committee, to be sent out to Sunday School workers, both in this country and abroad, for their criticisms and suggestions. Such criticisms and suggestions as come in are first carefully considered by the Subcommittee which had prepared the lessons, and their conclusions are then presented to the full Committee for final consideration and approval. Upon the adoption of these final revisions, the Secretary prints and distributes said revisions to the publishers and Sunday School editors and publishers throughout the Sunday School world. At the present time, the five Subcommittees of the Lesson Committee are composed of seven or more persons each under the following names:

1. Improved Uniform Lessons
2. Adult Lessons
3. Home Daily Bible Readings
4. Group Lessons
5. International Curriculum

It is the policy of the Lesson Committee to assign a place on some one of the Subcommittees to all the members who are fairly regular attendants at the meetings.

The Work of Last Year

Within the last year the Lesson Committee has completed the issuance of the lessons of the eight-year cycle of the Uniform Series first used in 1918. The last year of the series, that is for 1925, were printed January 24th of this year; and the Committee has already adopted a tentative cycle of six years to begin in 1926. The outlines for the lessons for 1926 are in proof form and the final revision will be acted upon at Atlantic City, December 28, 1923.

At the annual meeting in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, April 20, 21, 1922, the Lesson Committee formally launched the Group Graded Lessons beginning with the Primary and Junior age-groups with a set of lessons for each of those two departments for the year 1924. Simultaneously with the issuance of these Group Lessons for the Primary and Junior Departments, the Improved Uniform Series omitted its adaptations to those two departments of the Sunday School; the purpose being thereby, to substitute these new courses for the former adaptations of the Improved Uniform Lessons for those two departments. To facilitate this desired change, the Secretary issued the 1924 Group Graded Series for the Primary and Junior departments and the Improved Uniform Series for the same year in one sixteen-page folder with this caption, "Group-Uniform Series." Since that time we have also issued the same series for 1925.

The principles upon which these Group Graded Lessons are based are as follows:

1. These lessons are graded. They are pupil-centered rather than material-centered. The aim of the series as a whole is to nurture the growing moral and religious life of the child, and to lead to a permanent committment of that life to God through Jesus Christ, and to fitness for service in His Kingdom. The materials for the lessons are chosen with a view to their fitness to accomplish this aim throughout the different periods of the child's growth, rather than with a view to their logical completeness or chronological order.

2. These lessons are graded to the capacities and needs of three-year age-groups of children, rather than to the capacities and needs of single age-years. Within each age-group all children have the same lesson; and the lessons, therefore, move in three-year cycles. Within the cycle for each group, the lessons for the three years are of approximately equal difficulty; and no one year's lessons presupposes those of another year.

3. From age-group to age-group, these lessons are consecutive and cumulative; that is, the lessons of each succeeding age-group presuppose the nurture afforded by those of the preceding groups.

4. These lessons are dated, thus making possible their revision every three years, in the light of the experience of those using them.

5. These lessons are predominantly Biblical; that is, they are selected, chiefly, from Biblical materials; and as a part of the moral and religious nurture which is their total purpose, they aim to impart a comprehensive knowledge of the Bible and to afford to the pupil the disposition and the ability to use God's Word intelligently.

For several years we have been issuing Adult Courses—long courses covering one year and and short courses covering three months. Adult classes have been rather slow in discovering the value of these schemes of study, but from New York, word was brought us that there is a genuine demand for these studies and that they are meeting this demand in an acceptable manner.

The output of the Lesson Committee through the Secretary's office for the past year is as follows:

Home Daily Bible Readings for 1924, Final Revision, issued January 15, 1923.
Group Uniform Series includes Group Graded Primary Course for 1925, Group Graded Junior Course for 1925, and Improved Uniform for 1925, Final Revision, issued January 24, 1923.
Also each course printed separately, January 24, 1923.

INTERNATIONAL CURRICULUM

The Subcommittee on International Curriculum gave an extensive report at the annual meeting in Nashville, Tennessee, and the Lesson Committee adopted the following:

Personnel of the Joint Committee

Your Subcommittee has received notification of a change in the personnel appointed to the Joint Committee on International Curriculum from the Committee on Education. The present representatives are: Drs. W. Edward Raffety, Wade Crawford Barclay, E. Morris Fergusson, W. W. Charters and A. Duncan Yocum.

In response to overtures made to the Religious Education Association under the instructions of the last meeting of the Lesson Committee, the Religious Education Association has decided to maintain advisory relations only with the Joint Committee, in view of the fact that the Association does not deal with the creation of lesson materials and in view of the further fact that it comprehends within its scope other religions than the Christian religion. The Council of the Association has appointed to Consulting membership on the Joint Committee: Professors George A. Coe, J. M. Artman and E. L. Shaver.

The Personnel of the Advisory Committee

Pursuant to the instructions of the Lesson Committee at its last meeting, the Subcommittee increased the membership of the Advisory Committee to six and proceeded to complete the personnel. Dr. John W. Withers, of New York University, and Professor Edgar S. Brightmon, of Boston University, were added. The acceptance of Professor Bobbitt is still open.

A Statement on Tendencies in Modern Education

The Subcommittee, as previously reported, has had under way the formulation of a statement arising out of a study of the tendencies in modern education. We shall submit this at a later time.

A Statement on the Theory of the Curriculum

The Subcommittee will also at a later time, submit a statement of a theory of the curriculum which is designed to serve as a basic document in the construction of the International Curriculum of Religious Education.

Conferences with Publishers

A conference was held through Drs. Winchester and Weston with the Publishers' Section of the International Sunday School Council of Religious Education at its meeting in Chicago. Further Conference will be held with the same body at its meeting in the autumn.

Conference with Other Agencies

A conference of religious educational agencies dealing with secondary age-groups will be held May 3, 4, under the auspices of the Church Federation Council, under the leadership of Dr. Winchester. At this meeting the Chairman of your Subcommittee will present the policy and program of the Subcommittee on International Curriculum.

RELATION TO THE BRITISH LESSONS COUNCIL

Our relations to the British Lessons Council is cordial and helpful. We exchange Lesson outlines and proofs, and endeavor thereby to cultivate cordiality between the two bodies, and to keep each other thoroughly posted as to the fields covered by the lessons issued. The Secretaries of the two Committees keep each other apprised as to the program and plans of the other Committee.

FUTURE STATUS OF THE LESSON COMMITTEE

The merger of the International Sunday School Association and the Sunday School Council of Evangelical Denominations, consummated at Kansas City in June, 1922, necessarily involved the members of the Lesson Committee who were the appointees of the merged organization, embracing sixteen men. The Lesson Committee at its meeting in New York City, December 28, 1922, authorized its Business Committee to confer with the Business Committee of the merger and to work out a plan of co-operation for the future. These Business Committees had a joint conference on January 31, 1923, and prepared a set of statements which cover a working plan and a co-operative relationship for the future.

COMPLEXITY OF THE LESSON COMMITTEE'S TASK

Questions have been asked regarding the size of the Lesson Committee. Persons who are not acquainted with the field which the Committee is covering, often regard said Committee as large and unwieldy. But we should keep in mind that the old Lesson Committee from 1872 down to 1914, consisted of twelve to fourteen men, and their entire task, except from 1908 to 1914, was the preparation of the Uniform Lessons with Lesson Text and Golden Text for each year. The Uniform Lessons with adaptations for two departments of the Sunday School are now prepared by one Subcommittee of seven men. In other words, this Subcommittee of seven men does twice the amount of work done by the entire old Lesson Committee of fourteen men prior to 1908. In addition thereto, we have issued since 1908, Graded Lessons for each year from Beginners to twenty years of age. We are also issuing a variety of Adult Courses on Biblical books and for the study of present life problems in the Adult Department of our Schools. Beginning with 1924, we are also issuing Group Lessons for age groups of the Sunday School expecting to cover the entire School through the adolescent period. In response to a large demand, we are also preparing and issuing Home Daily Bible Readings on the Improved Uniform Series, and these, you will be glad to know, are increasing in popularity year by year. Our Subcommittee on International Curriculum is just beginning its work, but has large plans and comprehensive methods for accomplishing its task of evaluating all known courses of study in the field of religious education touching the Sunday School Week-day Religious Instruction and Vacation Bible Schools.

The above will indicate the complexity of the task which the Lesson Committee is undertaking and also the large service demanded of all the members of the Committee who are able to contribute to the accmplishment of this task.

The Lesson Committee has largely passed its stage of agitation and experimentation in administrative matters. It has reached the point where team work is the order and method in each Subcommittee and in the Committee as a whole. Of course, the Committee is composed of men and women of independent opinions, but they so marshal these opinions as heartily to co-operate and to bring to pass those things which are for the highest good of the Sunday School and the cause of religious education in our times.

The Sunday School work has been always under the supervision of the Board of Missions in the past. Help was given new schools by distributing to them free literature.

In 1913 the general conference elected a separate Sunday school board and elected a general secretary as its executive officer, since which time a paid secretary has been employed.

In 1921 the Sunday School Board and the supervision committee of the Christian Endeavor societies were merged into a Department of Religious Education, with a paid general secretary and a paid editor. The editor oversees the editing of all the literature, and the general secretary does the field work.

These Institutes consist of two days, and a program built on the plan of the four-fold life, presented in such a way that every point of contact of life in the Community is considered. This offers an opportunity of Service, especially in the rural communities that cannot be rendered in any other way.

In addition to the work done by our Teen Age specialists the general promotion work is carried on by the three denominational Field Secretaries, P. H. Robert, Baptist; E. R. McLean, Presbyterian, and W. E. Galloway, Methodist, each supported by their own Boards, and co-operate for the work of the Council. Mr. McLean and Mr. Galloway cover both Alberta and British Columbia, and the same arrangement holds for British Columbia, as far as they are concerned. A small and scattered population is one of the difficulties, but real progress is being made.

The National Sunday School Association of Cuba is at present without any paid officers. Last June Sylvester Jones was elected General Secretary and it has been necessary for him to give the greater part of his time to other matters. His greatest activity has been in the Daily Vacation Bible Schools as a representative of the International Association of Daily Vacation Bible Schools. This work was introduced into Cuba for the first time.

No accurate statistics have been kept concerning the activities in Religious Education. It is hoped that this information will be forthcoming next year, as they hope to get into closer touch with the denominational work of the various Mission Boards doing work in Cuba. This is a mission field and hence does not have the development that the various State organizations have.

Georgia furnishes a bureau of information through which expert assistance may be obtained by the asking; it maintains a circulating library, making available, without cost, the best books on Sunday School work; it supervises a system of conventions, state, county and district (about 800 a year).
It holds institutes of three, four and five days, which are schools of methods for the training of adult teachers; it develops leaders among the young people through the "older boys" and "older girls" conferences; it provides a common platform on which may be heard the strongest leaders of all denominations; a clearing house of tested principles and methods. By means of its state publication it keeps constantly before every school every progressive step in religious education.

The Daily Vacation Bible School, which has grown in Georgia from 3 schools in 1922 to 23 in 1923, was made possible largely by this Association.

The State of Kentucky contains one hundred and twenty counties. Many of these are rural counties, twelve of them not yet being reached by a railroad. Our Association reaches by letter and by personal visit every part of the State each year.

County conventions will be held in two-thirds of the counties. Conventions are becoming more like institutes, with time given for conferences.

The observance of the Tenth Go-to-Sunday-School-Day on May 6th in our State was in many ways the best we have ever held. It was preceded by three months of constructive work along the lines of regular attendance at Sunday School, punctuality, evangelism, and expansion. Reports indicate that over sixty thousand were added to the Sunday Schools of our State during the past year.

There has been a decided development in the Children's Division. Hundreds of homes are being more closely linked to the Sunday Schools. The organization and instruction in this division of the Sunday Schools are improving.

Five-minute studies of Child Welfare in Kentucky have been prepared and are being used by many Adult Bible Classes as supplemental studies.

The State Association has been reorganized, giving representation upon an equitable basis to all Christian communions in the councils of the Association. Every county in the State is organized for co-operative tasks and most of the districts within the counties. State, county and district conventions of great merit and help have been held. During the past year six thousand Sunday School workers attended these gatherings. Community training schools have been maintained in Portland, Lewiston and Bangor. Young people have been given training for Christian leadership within the Church school in two summer schools now increased to three. Attention has been given to the development of Daily Vacation Bible Schools and Week Day Schools of Religious Education. Institutes to train directors and workers for Vacation Bible Schools were held in the Spring in four centers within the State. The Secretary has served as Chairman of the ministers' committee in Portland, which has made surveys preliminary to the setting up of week day religious instruction in that city. Week day instruction will begin in Bar Harbor at the opening of the school year.

One-third of the Sunday Schools of the State use graded lessons in one or more departments. One Sunday School teacher in fourteen has taken or is taking teacher training. Sixteen hundred were received into Church membership from the Sunday Schools of the State during 1921-22, an average of two from each school. The total enrollment of the Sunday Schools of Maine is 96,000, the Methodist schools leading others with an enrollment of 36,000.

THE VALUE OF CONVENTIONS

MARION LAWRANCE

Stephen Paxson is usually referred to as the father of the Sunday School Convention idea. While perhaps this is not strictly true, he was certainly one of the foremost pioneers in that direction. It was on the 20th of April, 1846, at Winchester, Scott County, Illinois, that the First Inter-denominational County Sunday School Convention was held, of which we have any record. There were conventions before that time, indeed, two National Conventions had been held, one in 1832 in New York, and the other in 1833 in Philadelphia. But the County Convention idea as a means of Sunday School propaganda took record from that first convention in Scott County, which was followed by another convention in October of the same year at Pittsfield, Pike County, Illinois. In less than twenty years many of the States and a large number of the Counties were organized and holding Sunday School conventions annually. In less than ten years after the organization of Scott County, it was found necessary to organize townships and hold conventions in them.

However, it is not of Stephen Paxson personally that we wish to speak in this article, except to give him great honor, but to refer more particularly to the wonderful convention system which he really popularized, or "put upon the market." The purpose of these early conventions, as stated by Mr. Paxson himself in his homely fashion, was to "swop ideas," and while perhaps we would use more elegant language, no words could be found that more truly express the real genius of Sunday School conventions.

It is not our purpose to dwell upon the origin of Sunday School Conventions, but rather to refer to their marvelous, almost miraculous development, and the remarkable contribution the International Sunday School Council of Religious Education and its Auxiliaries have made through these Conventions to the development of the Sunday School idea and the building up of better Sunday Schools throughout North America.

The value of conventions is recognized in all lines of business activity and the professions, as well as in the field of religion. For example, it would be impossible to estimate the value of the County Agricultural Fair to farming. These Fairs can truly be called Conventions. Here are gathered the latest devices in farming implements and equipment, as well as samples of the finest products along every line.

The Sunday School Convention has made a contribution beyond computation to the Sunday Schools of America. The story of the Sunday School Conventions reads almost like a fairy tale. The first Conventions referred to above were National in character. After the one held in 1833, no more National Conventions were held for twenty-six years. "There's a reason." It was discovered that the proper place to begin was at the other end of the line, and at the bottom rather than at the top; hence, the origin of the County Convention. This is the proper order. Out of a local convention, as in a township or city, should grow the County Convention, which is the next larger geographic unit. Out of the County Convention should grow the State or Provincial Convention, which is the next larger geographic unit. Out of the State Convention should grow the International Convention, which covers the continent, and likewise naturally would follow the Convention of the whole world.

The very large number of Sunday School Conventions held annually under the auspices of the International Council and its Auxiliaries is a surprise to all who are not familiar with the facts. The International Convention is held but once in four years. Practically every State and Province in North America is organized, as well as Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, etc., and holds Annual Conventions. There are approximately sixty of these State and Provincial Associations. In the United States there are, according to the last record we have received, 3,389 counties, of which 2,672 were organized and holding Annual Sunday School Conventions. In these same counties there are something over 12,000 townships or districts, and while our records are probably not accurate, there are, nevertheless, more than 10,000 of these townships that are organized and holding Conventions annually. These local or township Conventions are, in many cases, held semi-annually; some of them quarterly, and a few townships hold a Convention every month. It is thus easy to discover that the aggregate number of Conventions is very large. Indeed, the last report received in our International office indicated that for the preceding quadrennium the total number of conventions reported was 62,758, or something over 15,000 Sunday School Conventions annually. It is conservatively estimated that these Conventions are attended by an aggregate of no less than four million Sunday School workers and friends each year.

The representative and democratic character of these Conventions, and the method of their formation and conduct, is a striking illustration of the great value of the International Council's method of carrying on its work. While not all of these Conventions measure up to the ideal, nevertheless, the ideal is continually kept in mind by those in charge, and is as follows:

1. The Township or Local Convention. This is the Convention covering the smallest organized unit. It is made up, or should be, of delegates chosen by the various Sunday Schools within that field. Usually every Sunday School in the township is represented by delegates at their Conventions. Incidentally, it should be stated that the smaller the territory covered by a given Convention, the more helpful it is to the local Sunday Schools, provided the programs are of the same quality. The reason of this is that a larger portion of the Convention time can be devoted to Sunday School improvement, rather than to administrative affairs. One of the functions of these township organizations (which number from ten to twenty-five in each county) is to elect official delegates to their next County Convention, or name a committee for that purpose. Delegates thus chosen can speak officially for their township when they attend the County Convention.

2. The County Convention. The County Conventions program should deal with the work of the local schools to a large extent, but it has an administrative responsibility, also, for it is their business to look after the completion and perfection of the township organizations which constitute their field.

3. The State or Provincial Convention. In like manner the delegates to the State or Provincial Convention should be elected by the County Associations, although they will no doubt be nominated for the most part by the township organizations, recommended by the various local Sunday Schools. The State Convention will of necessity give more attention to matters of general administration, because they have the county organizations to look after, reorganizing those that have fallen by the way and strengthening those that are still "carrying on." The portion of a State Convention that is most helpful to the local work will be found in the separate conferences held by divisions, departments, etc.

4. The International Convention. This great Convention occurring but once in four years is made up largely of delegates chosen by the various State and Provincial Associations in proportion to their Sunday School enrollment. Necessarily, this great gathering is occupied quite largely with the perfecting of the machinery, erecting standards of organization and education, and planning for the extension and improvement of the work. All who have been privileged to attend an International Convention will recognize the tremendous inspiration and uplift they give to the whole field.

5. The World's Convention. Similarly, all delegates from North America to the World's Sunday School Convention will be certificated by the International Council, although many of the delegates will apply direct for credentials. Others will be named by Denominational Boards, etc. Nevertheless, the credentials of all North American delegates will bear the name of the International Council and its executive officers.

Institutes, Conferences, Etc.

In addition to the Conventions referred to above, which are more or less popular, there are a great many other gatherings, and indeed they are growing in number, such as conferences, institutes, training schools, training camps, etc. For the purposes of this article, these may all be classed as Conventions, and here is where the leaders and prospective leaders come together to fit themselves for efficient work, either voluntary or under salary. There are at the present time something like three hundred men and women devoting their full time to the work of the International Council and its Auxiliaries, under salary, to say nothing of the larger number who serve under other auspices, denominational, etc., and the still larger number of voluntary workers who devote more or less valuable time to the organized Sunday School work. These run into thousands.

All of these find the very highest type of training for leadership in these schools, camps, etc. Of course, by far the larger number fit for voluntary service, and it is a high and holy calling. At this type of gatherings the entire program of the International Council, educational, administrative, financial, etc., are thoroughly studied, so that those who graduate from these schools go forth better equipped for their task. The International Council holds property to the value of more than $300,000, which is properly equipped and entirely devoted to leadership training.

Perhaps not all of our readers have had their attention called to a certain passage in the Bible which outlines in fine fashion the principles underlying the Convention idea as carried on through the International Council. It is found in the first verse of the twenty-eighth chapter of First Chronicles. The verse referred to reads as follows:

> "And David assembled all the princes of Israel, the princes of the tribes, and the captains of the companies that ministered to the king by course, and the captains over the thousands, and captains over the hundreds, and the stewards over all the substance and possession of the king, and of his sons, with the officers, and with the mighty men, and with all the valiant men, unto Jerusalem."

The last ten words of that same chapter give the purpose of the Convention, as follows: "And all the people will be wholly at thy commandment."

In conclusion, I would like to say that the entire purpose of this article is to remind our readers of the great contribution the International Sunday School Council is making in all parts of the North American field for the up-building of the Sunday School work, or, more properly speaking, the work of Religious Education. The record of the past, magnificent as it has been, is, however, but the earnest of what is before us, and we may confidently expect, under the direction of the newly merged organization now officially representing nearly all of the great denominations as well as the territorial units of our field, that there shall be developments and growth more adequately in keeping with the importance of the tasks we have in hand. If the International Council did nothing else but maintain this great system of conventions, institutes, schools, and the like, it would justify itself and deserve the hearty support and co-operation of all agencies in North America devoted to Religious Education, and, indeed, this support is now being given and assured for the future. The International Executive Committee, together with its sub-committees having to do with organization, education, lesson building, etc., organized in such a way as to represent those agencies in North America which are chiefly interested in Religious Education, gives promise of a program for the future much more intensive, varied and far-reaching than any as yet undertaken.

FOREWORD

WITH the increasing interest in Religious Education, there has come a demand for reliable information regarding organizations and individuals engaged in this important field of service. It is fitting that the International Council of Religious Education should issue its annual Year Book giving such data.

The idea was conceived by the Business Superintendent of the International Council, Mr. Ray S. Erlandson, and later approved by the Board of Trustees. Mr. Erlandson has been ably assisted in carrying out the project by his secretary, Miss Agnes E. Bollinger. In this second volume will be found a large amount of valuable facts never before compiled. Doubtless, imperfections may be discovered, but an earnest effort has been put forth to furnish reliable, up-to-date information in the field of Religious Education.

CO-OPERATION

IF the supremacy of Christ is to be established those who follow Christ must work together. The forces of righteousness are mightier than the forces of evil, but the forces of evil more often pull together while the forces of righteousness frequently work in unrelated groups, emphasizing their little differences instead of magnifying their one supreme purpose. Protestantism has given to the world religious liberty. To preserve this liberty and make effective the great ideals for which Protestant Christianity stands there must be a submerging of minor differences and a correlation of forces. From Report of Hugh S. Magill, General Secretary, to the International Executive Committee, February 19, 1925.

The outstanding piece of work in Alabama during the past year has been the Four Square Life Program in High Schools. A large number of County Superintendents of Education have invited us to come to their counties and put on the Four Square Life Program in every rural high school in their respective Counties, turning over the student body for the full day and inviting the parents in. Have put this program on in a number of different counties and have been requested by the Superintendents for a return engagement for the next school year. The above Four Square Life Program was the outgrowth of the Community Life Institutes.

This State association is providing a program of Religious Education and Sunday school efficiency beyond anything it has hitherto undertaken. The Department of Leadership Training, which includes all phases of Religious Education, conducts numerous Five-Day schools in small centers; four strong Summer Schools for Leadership Training in Saratoga, Carmel, Sidney Grove and Silver Lake; encourages Week-Day Religious Education on Public School Time with the result that in many communities churches are giving Week Day Religious Education to their Youth, the pupils being excused from public schools for a given period daily or weekly for this purpose. The Association publishes a sixteen-page magazine—the "Leader"; has established a Radio Department, through which, by courtesy of the General Electric Company, Schenectady, (WGY) there is broadcast each Friday evening at 6:30 o'clock an eighteen-minute discussion of the International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for the following Sunday, followed by a paper on some phase of Religious Education or Leadership Training, prepared by specialists of national reputation. Numerous group meetings, conferences and conventions are distributed evenly through the year, and several hundred Daily Vacation Bible Schools are conducted with increasing interest and numbers. The Association has never before presented such an inclusive and comprehensive program to its constituency.

COURSES OF STUDY

The aim of the courses is to provide the campers with opportunity for enriching and developing those areas of life where there is the greatest need and for training them in methods of service where there is the most likely opportunity to work in the home church and community. The courses for 1925 are given in the following list. Each camper will take four class periods which means four courses of ten hours each.

First Course

All campers will take the Bible Study Course, which for 1925 will be on the theme, "The Teachings of Jesus in Regard to the Kingdom of God." The camp will be divided into groups for this study according to the number in attendance. Campers will be given here a background for the theme of the entire Camp program, which is "Building the Kingdom."

Second Course

All first year campers and those who have not previously had a course on the Fourfold Life will have as their second course "The Fourfold Life." This is a valuable and interesting subject for young people. They dip down into their own natures and find out how it is they live and grow and act.

Those who have been in Camp in other years and have had a course in "The Fourfold Life," will take for their second course a most important study under the subject, "The Psychology of Leadership." In this course they will seek to answer among other questions this: "How do I 'get over' to other people the ideals and methods that I have received?" Such a subject is an important part of the Camp work.

Third Course

This will be a methods course and will deal with the most modern and approved methods in some particular field of service in the local church or community. All students will not take the same methods course, but will choose from the following list of four according to their actual service in the past or the work they will probably do the following year at home. The courses are, "Young People's Methods," including the organized class and the organized department for the newer and less experienced students at Camp; "A Comprehensive Young People's Program," which is for the advanced leaders and more experienced campers; "The Young People's Council" which is particularly for those who would probably be concerned with this sort of enterprise in their home community; and "The Young People's Conference" which is a careful study of this very important community enterprise.

Fourth Course

Each camper under the guidance of the Camp Director and the suggestion of friends at home will choose one from the following list of six courses. Need, interest, experience, and prospective service will determine the choice of this course.

Vocational Guidance

What is to be your work in life? Are you a square peg in a round hole as far as your daily work is concerned?

Campercraft

Are you at home in the woods and the out-of-doors?

Social Relationships

What does it mean to get along with other people? What is your attitude to your home, your community, the nation, the black or yellow man, etc?

How to Teach

How would you handle a group of younger boys or girls if called upon to act as their teacher?

Recreational and Play Leadership

For the New Day In Religious Education

At the beginning of a new day in the religious education of the child, this house is striving to fulfill the obligation of providing literature based on the best educational ideals.

GRADED LESSONS

Believing that the need of the child is paramount, as recognized in Graded Lessons, we have spared no pains nor expense in the production of this material. Our line of Graded literature has been approved by those qualified to judge.

UNIFORM LESSONS

Some schools, for various good reasons, prefer the Uniform lessons. We believe the children in those schools are entitled to the best we can give, and we therefore issue these lessons on the Group-Uniform plan, as authorized by the International Lesson Committee.

VACATION SCHOOL MATERIAL

Our line comprises manuals for four groups, covering three years, with all the required supplementary material. These courses follow educational principles and have been approved by the best authorities.

Week-day religious instruction is a subject of deep interest. Our handbook, price 25 cents, gives the results of a survey of all available material.

We have prepared many booklets for free distribution, and shall be glad to help those who will write us of their problems and their needs.

A LESSON COURSE FOR THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

The Westminster Departmental Graded Lessons

Seven Departments—Seven Lessons

In the final analysis it is what the pupils get from the lessons that really counts. And what they get depends upon the suitability and adaptability of the lessons.

The need of the child should be the law of any school. But a school need not burden itself with an impractical lesson system in giving the best to its pupils.

Religious Education for the Week Day

THE WESTMINSTER TEXTBOOKS OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

Produced for the purpose of enabling churches to unify their educational work by the use of a correlated course of study. Unless there is some such binding of week-day religious instruction to the regular educational program of the individual church, we shall lose a large part of the benefit to be derived from the week-day church school movement.

These courses of study are not tied up to any weekly time schedule, so that churches may begin the use of them at any time. The lessons are carefully graded so as to fit the religious needs of pupils of the ages for which they are intended.

A summary of the entire Week-Day Religious Instruction Movement can be learned from THE WEEK-DAY CHURCH SCHOOL by Walter Albion Squires, B. D. It assumes that the week-day church school movement is more than an experiment, and the movement is evaluated in its entirety as well as in its various community forms. Careful and conservative estimates are given. Problems of organization are discussed practically, not theoretically. A PARISH PROGRAM OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION by Walter Albion Squires, B. D., gives suggestions for a church school designed to carry on a unified educational program for an individual church. Suggests a program for leadership training; a program of co-operation with the home; and a central program of information worship and expression.

Issued for the use of Church Schools, having Sunday, Week-Day and Expressional Sessions.

FOR THE VACATION TIME

Daily Vacation Bible School

Some people think that the Daily Vacation Bible School enterprise is suited only to congested sections of the cities; or in spiritually and socially neglected localities. They have proved great worth under such circumstances; but they have also given excellent results, in churches, in residential communities.

Important reasons and suggestions for the establishment of a Daily Vacation Bible School will be found in our Bulletin No. 12.

What Texts Shall We Use?

THIS is the question that will have to be answered when plans are made for the opening of Week-day Schools of Religious Education. Let us tell you a little about THE ABINGDON SERIES OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION TEXTS.

The writers of The Abingdon Texts have all been selected because of their loyalty to six primary considerations:

1. The fundamentals of Evangelical Christianity.
2. Scientific accuracy.
3. Intelligent sympathy with the denominational point of view and that spirit of inter-church co operation which is making possible a national and even a world program.
4. The true function of religion in a program of community upbuilding.
5. The assembling and organizing of that knowledge which will be most helpful from the standpoint of practical efficiency, and around which inspiring enthusiasm on the part of both teacher and pupil can readily be fostered.
6. The meaning of religious education to American democracy

CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP AMONG THE NATIONS

Prepared by Professor Jerome Davis of Yale Divinity School and Reverend Roy B. Chamberlin, Minister of Church of Christ, Hanover, New Hampshire

A Study Course on international relations, which bravely faces controversial questions and evades no issue of fundamental importance.

"The method by which the course is organized is unusual. Each lesson is introduced by actual incidents which have happened and which, primarily because they are true happenings and are cleverly arranged so as to bring out the different principles on which the discussion of each lesson is to be based, are much more appealing and thought-provoking than any statement of abstract principles could possibly be. . . . . It is good to see a pamphlet issued for study of the international implications of Jesus' principles and spirit, which neither evades crucial issues nor presents its material in a one-sided manner."—The World Tomorrow. Textbook, 25 cents a copy.

CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP IN MODERN INDUSTRY

By Professor Arthur E. Holt, Department of Social Ethics, Chicago University.

A Study Course proposed to help groups find material to build a common Christian conscience in regard to industrial problems.

This course attempts to view the industrial situation from the standpoint of certain major groups of people who have their interests, duties and privileges in the ongoing economic process. The genius of the course is to bring together representatives of varying points of view in face-to-face relationships to grapple with some of the real problems of industry. Textbook, 25 cents a copy.

CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP IN THE FAMILY

By Millacent P. Yarrow

A Study Course grappling fearlessly with one of the thorniest nests of problems in our modern life.

Are our homes to be organized on the "might makes right" basis? Are fathers and mothers and children to fight for their rights, or is there to be unity and fellowship? A home must be a monarchy, or something better. The questions involved in this theme are laid before the group. Recommended also for Parent-Teacher Meetings and similar gatherings. Textbook, 35 cents a copy.

A Unique Feature of this Series of Discussions Is

THE LIBRARY PACKAGE OF PAMPHLETS FOR LEADERS

One Package Needed for Each Class.

A most valuable and unusual feature of these courses is the Library Packages providing illuminating and informing material for discussion and bringing out clearly different points of view. Price of each Library Package, $1.50.

THE COKESBURY HYMNAL

"A SONGBOOK FOR EVERY OCCASION"

Hymns For The Church | Songs For The Sunday School | Songs For The Revival

The Cokesbury Hymnal is a songbook for every occasion and for every possible use. For the regular Church service where a HYMNAL cannot be afforded, for the Sunday School in churches of all sizes, and for the revival services as well!

The Cokesbury Hymnal brings back the old hymns and tunes that our fathers and mothers used to sing. Songs that thrill the heart and inspire the soul with the intense love of divine worship. They are the hymns and songs that the people love to sing, because they come from the deepest recesses of the heart and because the heart and mind and soul respond to them in a glorious rhythm of worshipful praise.

Preachers, song leaders, and Christian workers from everywhere made the selections comprising the Cokesbury Hymnal. The publishers asked them to select only those hymns that are nearest to the hearts of the great mass of Christian people. On nearly every list submitted the old familiar songs were predominant! They represent the most treasured numbers from the very best books of the foremost song publishers of the world.

Special Chorus Arrangements

Professor Harold Hart Todd, Professor of Harmony and Piano in Southern Methodist University, has contributed special chorus arrangements for eleven of the most popular choral numbers. A feature that cannot be found anywhere in a songbook of this price.

Three Indexes

The Cokesbury Hymnal is equipped with three complete indexes so that any one song or list of songs for a special purpose may be easily found. There are over fifty different subject headings, with from one to forty-three different songs listed under each. Only its actual use in your own Church can demonstrate in a better way that it is a songbook for all occasions.

Responsive Readings

Not satisfied with publishing a remarkable songbook, the publishers have included a selected group of responsive readings. The readings are taken from both the Old and New Testaments, many chosen for use on special occasions, while all are appropriate for regular use in the weekly Church service.

The Orchestrated Edition

Wherever instrumental music is used the orchestrated edition has a distinct advantage. Some instruments in the hands of expert musicians can be played without it, but most instruments require it. The orchestras that are a real pride to their Church use orchestrated editions of their songbooks.

The orchestration of a song is a long, tedious job requiring the services of an expert musician. And, with but few exceptions, new music plates must be prepared for each instrument, requiring many months and great expense.

But the publishers of the Cokesbury Hymnal have had every song in the book set to music for fourteen different instruments—bound in separate volumes one for each instrument.

Eleven Orchestral Volumes: first violin, second violin, alto and bass, flute, first clarionet, second clarionet, cornets, trombone bass, trombone treble, alto horn or E-flat saxaphone, C-melody saxaphone.

Prices: set of eleven volumes for fourteen instruments, $13.75; six volumes, $7.50; single volumes, $1.50. Postage, 10 cents a copy.

SECTION I: THE INTERNATIONAL COUNCIL OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

1. Organization and Membership

The International Council of Religious Education is a federation of the organized Protestant Christian forces of the continent for the promotion, cooperatively, of the teaching ministry of the church. It derives its program from the forces which it federates through their duly elected representatives. It is the accredited agency of the Protestant churches for setting up such standards and developing such programs as their representatives may determine, working together in the Council.

The International Executive Committee is the Council, so far as control and management of the Council are concerned. Article three, Section one of the By-laws provides: "The affairs of the Council shall be managed by the Executive Committee which in its official capacity shall be known as the International Council of Religious Eduction."

The Executive Committee is composed of about one hundred eighty-two members, eighty-five elected by the cooperating denominations, sixty-five elected by the auxiliary state and provincial councils, twenty elected by the quadrennial convention, and twelve special members elected by the Council on nomination of the Board of Trustees. Each cooperating denomination and each state and provincial council elects at least one member of the Executive Committee, and additional members are apportioned to the larger denominations and states in accordance with a ratio of representation agreed upon. The total number of representatives elected by the cooperating denominations equals the number of representatives elected by the states and provinces plus the representatives elected at the quadrennial convention.

6. Training Enterprises

International Training Schools

The International Council is the agency through which the co-operating forces represented in the Council establish standards in the field of teacher and leadership training. Nearly 300 Standard Training Schools were conducted during the school year ending August 31, 1926, under the supervision of the International Council, and more than 20,000 credits have been received by the Department of Leadership Training of the International Council and certified to the respective co-operating denominations, by whom these credits are given full recognition.

The International Council maintains and operates three Leadership Schools each year of two weeks duration; at Conference Point on Lake Geneva, Wisconsin; at Geneva Point, Lake Winnipesaukee, New Hampshire; and at Geneva Glen, Indian Hills, near Denver, Colorado. Full information regarding these Schools may be obtained from the Department of Leadership Training of the International Council.

International Older Boys' and Older Girls' Camp Conferences

The International Council maintains and conducts three Camp Conferences for older boys and three Camp Conferences for older girls each year, each two weeks in length. A Camp Conference for older boys and another for older girls is held each year at the three Camp sites of the International Council; at Conference Point on Lake Geneva, Wisconsin; at Geneva Point, Lake Winnipesaukee, New Hampshire; and at Geneva Glen, Indian Hills, near Denver, Colorado. Full information regarding these Camp Conferences may be had by addressing the Department of Young People's Work of the International Council.

7. The International Council Convention

The By-Laws of the International Council provide that a convention may be held once in four years. The last quadrennial convention was held in Birmingham, Alabama, April 12-19, 1926. It is customary to hold a general program during the forenoons and evenings of each day, the afternoons being devoted to special conferences covering all the different phases of religious education. At the Birmingham Convention about two hundred different persons appeared on the program and practically every phase of religious education was discussed by experts in the respective fields. An interdenominational Young People's Conference was held at the same time, attended by nearly one thousand young people from all parts of the United States and Canada. The total attendance at the Convention was nearly five thousand.

The quadrennial convention of the International Council has no legislative or executive function other than to elect twenty members of the International Executive Committee and make such recommendations as the Convention may see fit to the Executive Committee, which is the governing body of the Council. The next convention will be held in 1930, and Toronto received the preferential vote. The time and place will be determined by the Board of Trustees.

8. Publications of the Council

The International Journal of Religious Education is the official publication of the International Council. It has a unique place in journalism. The co-operative interdenominational program in religious education is growing, developing and expanding all the time and one of the chief functions of the Journal is to make known these developments particularly as related to the Council and the co-operating forces which it represents. The Journal is able to draw its material from a very broad field and secure the services of the very best writers. It does not treat Sunday-school lessons but sets forth the principles and methods and is quite indispensable to pastors, church school officers and teachers because of its definite concrete suggestions, worship and service programs, pageants, seasonal and specialization articles. The subscription price is $2.00 per year.

Research Service in Religious Education is published quarterly by the Department of Research and Service. Valuable findings of research and experimentation are made available to the public through this publication. The bulletins issued during 1926 are: No. 1, "Laws, Court Decisions and Legal Opinions in the United States Regarding the Dismissal of Pupils from Public School to attend Classes in Religious Education"; No. 2, "The Use and Value of Pupil Report Cards in the Church School" and "Equipment for the Church School"; Nos. 3 and 4, "The Director of Religious Education." The subscription price is $1.00 per year.

Conference Pointers is published monthly by the Department of Young People's work. It is issued in the interest of the Campers who have been students in the International Camps, and those who are prospective students. The subscription price is fifty cents per year.

The Year Book of the International Council published annually brings together a body of information regarding the work of religious education in America and furnishes a directory of the personnel engaged in this work, both denominational and interdenominational. In hundreds of offices it serves as a ready reference directory of religious education.

The different departments of the Council issue bulletins, pamphlets and leaflets on seasonal and special programs. These are published in large quantities and sold at cost to church school workers of the continent. The lesson topics and outlines adopted by the International Lesson Committee are printed by the Council and made available for the lesson-making bodies and publishers. All actions taken by the International Executive Committee, Board of Trustees, Committee on Education and other committees of the Council are published for the use of the members of the council.

SECTION II. STATE COUNCILS OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

When the International Council was formed it was agreed that the State Sunday School Associations would be reorganized into State Councils of Religious Education, auxiliaries of the International Council, under a governing body that would officially represent both the co-operating denominations and the so-called territorial forces in the states. Both the International Council and the State Councils are interdenominational organizations, officially representing the denominations for co-operative work in religious education, with the sanction and support of the educational boards of these denominations. Local councils of religious education are being organized in cities and communities, auxiliaries of the State Councils, to carry into effect the co-operative, interdenominational program of the International Council. These local councils of religious education represent the churches of the city, county or community in all co-operative efforts, including vacation church schools and week-day schools of religion.

SECTION III: DENOMINATIONS WHICH HAVE REPRESENTATION IN THE INTERNATIONAL COUNCIL

The following denominations co-operate in the International Council of Religious Education. They elect their own representatives on its governing body. They recognize it as their accredited agency for carrying forward a co-operative program in religious education, and they contribute to its support.

Any Protestant evangelical denomination is eligible for membership in the International Council of Religious Education. Application must be made to the Council and membership becomes effective when approved by the Council. Thirty-six denominations are now represented. Representation is based on church school enrollment. Every co-operating denomination is entitled to at least one representative on the Council, and to one additional representative for each two hundred fifty thousand church school enrollment or major fraction thereof. The brief scope of this Year Book makes it possible to give only the official name of each denomination, the name of the Board or Committee under which the work in religious education is carried on, the national employed staff (or if no staff, the general officers), the editor-in-chief, the field representatives, and the publishing houses.

What Texts Shall We Use?

THIS is the question that will have to be answered when plans are made for the opening of Week-day Schools of Religious Education. Let us tell you a little about THE ABINGDON SERIES OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION TEXTS.

The writers of The Abingdon Texts have all been selected because of their loyalty to six primary considerations:

1. The fundamentals of Evangelical Christianity.
2. Scientific accuracy.
3. Intelligent sympathy with the denominational point of view and that spirit of inter-church co-operation which is making possible a national and even a world program.
4. The true function of religion in a program of community upbuilding.
5. The assembling and organizing of that knowledge which will be most helpful from the standpoint of practical efficiency, and around which inspiring enthusiasm on the part of both teacher and pupil can readily be fostered.
6. The meaning of religious education to American democracy.

A LESSON COURSE FOR THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

The Westminster Departmental Graded Lessons

Seven Departments—Seven Lessons

In the final analysis it is what the pupils get from the lessons that really counts. And what they get depends upon the suitability and adaptability of the lessons.

The need of the child should be the law of any school. But a school need not burden itself with an impractical lesson system in giving the best to its pupils.

Religious Education for the Week Day

THE WESTMINSTER TEXTBOOKS OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

Produced for the purpose of enabling churches to unify their educational work by the use of a correlated course of study. Unless there is some such binding of week-day religious instruction to the regular educational program of the individual church, we shall lose a large part of the benefit to be derived from the week-day church school movement.

These courses of study are not tied up to any weekly time schedule, so that churches may begin the use of them at any time. The lessons are carefully graded so as to fit the religious needs of pupils of the ages for which they are intended.

A summary of the entire Week-Day Religious Instruction Movement can be learned from THE WEEK-DAY CHURCH SCHOOL by Walter Albion Squires, B. D. It assumes that the week-day church school movement is more than an experiment, and the movement is evaluated in its entirety as well as in its various community forms. Careful and conservative estimates are given. Problems of organization are discussed practically, not theoretically. A PARISH PROGRAM OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION by Walter Albion Squires, B. D., gives suggestions for a church school designed to carry on a unified educational program for an individual church. Suggests a program for leadership training; a program of co-operation with the home; and a central program of information worship and expression.

Issued for the use of Church Schools, having Sunday, Week-Day and Expressional Sessions.

FOR THE VACATION TIME

Daily Vacation Bible School

Some people think that the Daily Vacation Bible School enterprise is suited only to congested sections of the cities; or in spiritually and socially neglected localities. They have proved great worth under such circumstances; but they have also given excellent results, in churches, in residential communities.

Important reasons and suggestions for the establishment of a Daily Vacation Bible School will be found in our Bulletin No. 12.
